PROGRAMME FOR THE LIT. IS ANNOUNCED

First Debate Of Series To-Night.

INTER-CLASS DEBATES.

Advantages Should Appeal
To Men Of All Years.

The Freshmen and Sophomores in Arts are to meet to-night in Strathcona Hall to argue on the knotty question of the municipal ownership and control of public utilities. Great interest is being shown in this contest by the members of the two classes and a large turn out of supporters is expected.

This is the first of a series of inter-class debates which the Executive of the Lit. is planning to hold during this session. The work of the Lit., during the last few years, has been something of a negligible quantity and it is hoped that this year the society may be restored to the place of prominence in student activities, which it was accustomed to hold in pre-war days.

In the first year of the war the Lit. failed to have a representation in the Intercollegiate Debating Series and a resolution was passed by the Students' Council upbraiding the Lit. for lowering the colours of old McGill in this important part of the intercollegiate activities. In all probability, the intercollegiate debate will be revived this year and the Lit. is anxious to have McGill represented by men who will bring credit to the University and it is also hoped that sufficient support will be given to the Lit. to revive the old time Mock Parliaments. It is with this end in view that the schedule for the present season is being drawn up. In order to bring out all the latent ability in public speaking which must exist among so many students, it is proposed to inaugurate a system of informal, interclass debates. These will be held every week and a definite schedule will be drawn up in league forms. It is hoped that classes from every faculty will be represented and that a great deal of new material will be brought to light. From present prospects eight or ten classes will probably take part. This will form an attractive series, which, with two debates every week, (allowing each class to debate once in two weeks) will conclude the schedule well before the Christmas exams. If this scheme proves successful, the Lit. will, next term, make arrangements for a large Mock Parliament, intercollegiate debates, public speaking contest and the Macnaughten reading contest. It is, therefore, necessary for everyone desiring the revival of these activities, to turn out actively now and support the present programme. A general meeting of the society will be held in Strathcona Hall in the early part of next week, at which all men taking an interest in the proposed programme are asked to be present. Those classes, and only those classes, which are represented will be included in the schedule; this will allow the executive to see what support is being given to the scheme, and permit them to go ahead with the drawing up of a definite schedule. SENIORS IN ARTS BUSINESS MEETING

Present Season Will Mark
Many Social Events.

The Arts Seniors held a meeting yesterday in order to proceed with the business of preparing their programme for the year. The Senior Play was first discussed and it was decided that the plans should be proceeded with immediately in order to have rehearsals begin in the near future. Messrs. Evans, Peterson and Taylor were appointed to act in conjunction with the senior year of the Royal Victoria College in choosing a play and determining the cast. It is probable that the play will be presented shortly after the first term examinations and it is important that the plans should not be delayed any longer.

A proposal from the Junior year that the seniors should join with them in a joint theatre and supper party was favourably discussed and it was decided to have it in the near future. Messrs. Townshon and Martin were appointed as a special committee to make all necessary arrangements as to the nature of the party and the date. The party will be held in the early part of next week.

The revival of class debating was discussed and it was unanimously decided that the senior year should be represented throughout the coming season. The first debate in which the year will take part will be with a team from the Junior year and will take place in the near future. The seniors will be represented by a team composed of N. E. Peterson and C. H. Adair.

Every endeavour will be made on the part of the class executive to promote class functions throughout the session and there is no doubt but that the class will have a very successful social season.

MED. '18 MAN DEAD

Captain Lockery, a member of the Class of Medicine '18, died in the General Hospital, of pneumonia, late last week. Capt. Lockery was a popular member of his class and his death will be regretted by his many friends.

Commanding Officer (to delinquent brought up for having a dirty rifle)—Oh, you appear to be a very old soldier! One of the king's bad bargains, eh, and always in the orderly room, I suppose? Well, what were you charged with the last time you were brought up?

Delinquent (stung to irony)—Having a dirty bow and arrow, sir!"

VICTORY BONDS.

All students and members of the staff of the University are requested to purchase their Victory Bonds from the student canvassers. This will enable the college to make a good showing and the Victory Loan Committee advise that all subscriptions coming from members of McGill should be forwarded through the Student Canvassers.

SECOND TALK DELIVERED BY DR. SYMONDS

Lectures On the Kingdom of Heaven.

PROTESTANT'S FAILURE

Open Meeting To Be Held
In Strathcona Hall
Thursday.

A very appreciative gathering awaited yesterday afternoon, in the Common Room of R.V.C., the second of Dr. Symonds' lectures on the Kingdom of Heaven, the first lecture on the Kingdom of Heaven as found in the Old Testament having been given on the preceding Wednesday.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and approved, the president announced an open meeting to be held on Thursday evening at the Strathcona Hall at which Doctor Robertson will speak. She then called upon Dr. Symonds.

Dr. Symonds began his address with a short resume of his last lecture, emphasizing the point that, in order to understand the Kingdom of Heaven as found in the teaching of Christ, it is necessary to have a clear idea of what this Kingdom meant to His contemporaries. These had derived their conception of the Kingdom of God from the Old Testament and from the works which lie between the Old and the New Testaments, namely, the apocalyptic writings that followed the book of Malachi. These books are full of the idea of the Kingship and the Kingdom of God and, as they were commonly taught by the Rabbis of Christ's time, He must have been not only familiar with them, but also deeply impressed and influenced by their vivid prophecies. When this is realized, fresh weight is added to the first words which are recorded as having been spoken by Him in the oldest gospel, the gospel of St. Mark. "The time is fulfilled and the Kingdom of God is at hand."

Dr. Symonds here remarked the extraordinary way in which the teaching of Christ has been buried under a heap of superstition. Herein, he declared, lies the great mistake of present day Protestantism. As an example of this, he cited the little importance that is attached to Christ's words concerning the Kingdom of Heaven, whereas the great word gospel really means the good news of the Kingdom of God and Christ is constantly referring to this subject.

Following this announcement of the coming of the Kingdom of Heaven is the call of Christ to repentance, a repentance which means not merely sorrow or remorse but a change of mind; Christ called the Jews to change their exclusive conception of the Great Kingdom, as well as to reform their manner of life, when he said "Repent Ye."

In speaking of the many parables on the Kingdom of Heaven, Dr. Symonds pointed out the fact that the Hebrews were neither systematic nor logical, that the Oriental mind loves visions. Therefore Christ taught after their fashion and revealed His conception of the Kingdom of God in little pictures, each one of which shows an aspect of that Kingdom. With the parable of the man and the precious stone, He

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1919.

ARE YOU A KNOCKER?

It is easy to criticize and this in great measure accounts for the fact that the world has a very apparent superfluity of critics. The line of least resistance is at all times tempting. To do, and to accomplish, requires expenditure of energy while to merely criticize, in the meaner sense of the word, is an occupation well suited to the idler and the croaker.

Criticism, like many other things, when properly employed and directed, may be the means of effecting improvement and stimulating progress. In its use it is excellent, but in its abuse it is in truth an abomination, the effect of which is to cast a blight upon enterprise.

The university is in a very true sense the training-ground for citizenship, and as such it is a world in miniature. It represents the same struggles, the same possibilities for accomplishment and the same liability to defeat. University life should be broad enough to allow ample scope for the exercise and development of every talent and capability.

To a certain extent at least we believe that this state of affairs is true at McGill. We have student activities and the fact of their existence imposes an obligation upon every man to assume his share of the responsibility for their support.

The maintenance of student activities of course carries with it problems of considerable variety. Someone must be responsible for their solution. Unfortunately men are not as public-spirited as they might be and the majority are content to leave matters of public concern to the minority who, being men of action and accomplishment, with the ability to do things and an abhorrence for seeing things undone, push personal considerations aside and assume the duties and obligations which should be borne by all. This, of course, is a fact which to some extent at least is irremediable. All men are not capable of rendering such service for the public weal, others are, for one reason or another, prevented from so doing, and so the burden is left to the few.

The deplorable part of the whole matter is, not so much that a few are compelled to bear the brunt of the burden but, that so many of these, who assume absolutely no responsibility, make a practice of "knocking" the efforts and accomplishments of the few upon whom these duties devolve. In short, and to state it frankly, there are too many men and women in the great outside world as well as within the limits of our University, who are chronic "knockers." They criticize indiscriminately and their criticism is not of the constructive type. Their contribution to student activities and institutions partakes of the nature of a liability. It is a wet blanket which stays progress and dampens enthusiasm.

We are all confronted with obligations. If circumstances prevent their fulfillment, so much the worse for us and the things or persons to whom we are obliged. But at least let us not hinder or discourage others who are doing their share, as well as a very considerable part of our own, to maintain institutions and privileges which none of us are loath to take advantage of.

SOPHOMORES REST FROM THEIR TOIL

Revel In Chicken Feed At the Hudson Bay House.

A successful termination of two weeks arduous labors, under the direction of Mr. Jull, in fattening chickens, the Sophs held the annual chicken feed at Hudson Bay House, where, under the management of Mrs. Wright, our chickens which everyone wished, someone else would feed, during the fattening period, especially in the mornings, were served in a very appetizing style along with many other delicious dishes.

The class members, each accompanied by one of the fairer sex from across the campus, and the invited guests, consisting of Dr. Harrison, Mrs. Isaac, Dr. Savage, Mr. Jull and Messrs. Hodgins, Jones and Thompson, presidents respectively of the senior, junior and freshmen classes, sat down to tables laid in the two large dining rooms of the Hudson Bay House at 8 o'clock after singing the college grace.

Throughout the supper the merry laughs of the ladies and gentlemen present spoke for itself that the evening was being thoroughly enjoyed. Towards the close of the evening the president of the class, Jimmy Graham, made a short and well appointed address and then called on Dr. Harrison, who, as is his custom spoke to the point in a few interesting remarks. Dr. Savage, our honorary president, followed Dr. Harrison; in the first part of his address he took the opportunity of thanking the class for the honor conferred upon him by electing him as honorary president. His short speech was well received and met with considerable applause. In concluding, he complimented the class on their sportsmanship and goodfellowship which existed and hoped would continue throughout the year.

Mr. Jull spoke of the incidents of the fattening and killing methods adopted by the class, to the amusement of those present and also complimented the class on their work.

Norris Hodgins, president of the Senior Year and Students' Council, when called upon to give a few words, said he still believed in the saying, "that all men were liars," because he had been told by the Sophomore President that he would not have to say anything to-night, and then he was requested to do so. However, Norris is one who does not require any previous notification to be able to give an interesting talk. He said that the Sophs were expected to take the lead in certain phases of college life and that this year the Sophs were doing that admirably, which spirit he was glad to see and hoped would continue. Mr. R. Jones, the Junior President, who like Mr. Hodgins, was suddenly asked to address the gathering rose to the occasion and congratulated the class on their goodfellowship and their successful endeavors to promote college spirit.

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. Thompson, president of the Freshmen class, who made a few well chosen remarks on the initiation and rush between the two classes and the friendship which existed between Freshmen and Sophs, and which he hoped would continue throughout the year. The gathering broke up at 8 o'clock after the singing of college songs and everyone voted the evening a huge success.

The ladies present were Misses R. Huisteen, Margaret Holcomb, Dorothy Newton, Madeline Stevenson, Dorothy Putnam, F. Solis, D. LeDain, Jessie NalSmith, B. Thomas, M. Smythe, G. Howard, Miss Seybold, Helen Thompson, Helen White, Mrs. McDonald, Dorothy Kent, Peggie Quain, E. MacLennan, Hilda McClellan, E. Averil, Mildred Armstrong, Jessie Bently, D. Stark, W. Goodwin, Phyllis Mathewman, Francis Wheeler, Grace McQuat.

PERSONALS.

C. R. Bradford, of the Junior year, was one of the guests from Macdonald at the Prince of Wales Ball in Montreal on Tuesday night.

Many a hearty handshake was received by Delmar McLintock, B.S.A., of Class '13, when he paid a short visit to Macdonald yesterday. Enlisting a few days after war was declared, "Mac" had a varied and distinguished career overseas, which gave him the rank of lieutenant, and won for him the M.C. He was a prominent figure on the Staff Rugby team yesterday.

On Tuesday P.M., N. F. Creller, a Freshman of the School of Agriculture, was personally decorated with the Military Medal by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Mr. Creller has every reason to be proud of this signal honor, and the student body extend their congratulations.

We are pleased to see W. J. Reid '17 and R. S. Kennedy '12 taking an active part on the Staff football team yesterday afternoon.

DEVASTATED France and Belgium are confronted with greater difficulties, but they can depend upon indemnities and outside help. Canada must help herself. And she is abundantly able to do so. Let the world watch her after-war achievements!

MACDONALD VICTORS IN RUGBY GAME

The Final Score Stood At 18-9.

OLD BOYS PLAYED.

Despite Heavy Weight Handicap Our Boys Did the Trick.

The Macdonald rugby team yesterday afternoon put in its first real good practice this season. The practice took the form of a game between the student team and a team composed of graduates and other members of the college staff. The "Old Boys" were greatly strengthened by the playing ability of "Hark" Church, Med. '17, and "Andy" Hunter, also a graduate in Medicine, both of whom now hold positions in the St. Anne's Military Hospital. Before the game was over it was the consensus of opinion among the college team that those "Old Boys" must have had an aggregate weight in the vicinity of seven or more tons. But despite this enormous accumulation of flesh the college team were able to come out victors by the score of 18-8.

The game began with the Old Boys kicking off. By a series of bucks and speedy end runs Macdonald got the ball to the Old Boys' ten-yard line. Here Evans was given the ball, who passed to MacLennan and the latter went over for a touch; Evans failed to convert. Failing to secure yards, Macdonald kicked for a rouge.

In the second quarter play was confined to mid-field for some time; but gradually Macdonald pushed back their opponents. Evans was given the ball and by a clever run made a touchdown which he converted. The Old Boys' weight now began to tell. They bucked their way through for a considerable distance, then kicked to McEwen, whom they pushed over for a safety. Macdonald retaliated by sending over Evans for another try; Evans converted.

The third quarter saw more improvement in the Old Boys' play. Beef always tells, and by making good use of their abundant supply in this commodity the Old Boys secured a touch. "Hark" Church was the man on whom fell the honour of saving his team from an ignominious whitewash. Later in this same quarter they added to their total by making a rouge.

The fourth quarter saw both teams striving to gain more points, but their efforts proved futile. Final score:—Macdonald, 18; Old Boys, 8.

ECONOMY CLUB

The first meeting of the recently re-organized Political Economy Club will be held on Thursday, November 6th at eight p.m., when the subject under discussion will be "The Financial Position of Canada." A paper will be read on this subject by Mr. L. W. Kern, of Arts '21, which will be followed by open discussion on our present wealth, debt and taxation.

Students are reminded that under the new constitution every male student taking a course in Political Economy or Political Science at the University is eligible for membership, and it is hoped that as many as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity of joining the club, and of discussing with the other members the big economic problems of the hour. There are no fees in connection with the membership whatever.

An announcement of the club's entire programme for the season will be made shortly.

MAC'S THEATRE NIGHT.

A special performance of "Hearts of Humanity" for Macs. was given at the Rose Movie Theatre, Ste. Annes, yesterday afternoon. A large gathering took this opportunity of seeing one of the most impressive pictures of the year.

MAC'S FRESHMEN STRONG ON SOCCER

Defeat the Dignified Juniors By Only One Point.

"This is the best game of soccer I have seen here for a long time," was the opinion expressed by Mr. E. Jones who refereed the Junior Freshman soccer match this afternoon, the first of the series of games for the Boving Cup. Competition was keen throughout, and the game well contested, each side being bent on winning.

During the first half the sides seemed well matched, and no advantage was scored by one side over the other, the play being kept at one end and then the other afterwards. When the whistle blew, neither side had scored. With the commencement of the second half of the game, more keenness seemed to be displayed, both by the players themselves and by the "rooters" for both teams. The yells of the third and first years were heard alternately, each set of rooters trying to make the louder noise.

As the game proceeded it could be seen that the Freshies were gaining the advantage, play being kept near the Juniors' goal, and finally the former scored a goal from a free kick awarded the Freshies owing to a "foul" made by one of the Juniors. There was no more scoring after this, the game ending with a victory for the Freshmen of 1 goal to 0.

Both sides deserve great credit for the keen play. The Freshmen displayed excellent combination. There was very little individual play.

The line-up for both sides was as follows:—

Juniors—Hackey, goal; Peterson and Mine, backs; R. Jones, D. Mathers and Parker, half backs; Bradford, Smith, Page, Denison and Brown, forwards.

Freshmen—Perron, goal; G. Mathers and Heslop, backs; Bowen, Graham and McQuat, half backs; MacLennan, Collie, Blimnick, Vanderpool and Cooper, forwards.

SENIOR GIRLS WAR AGAINST H.C. OF L.

Despite High Prices Keep the Feeding Much At Top Notch Efficiency.

One of the prime problems we have with us to-day is this one, very aptly termed H. C. L., or high cost of living. Its meaning is known to everyone, young or old, rich or poor. No one individual, or class, can be said to be exempt as it sooner or later—and mostly sooner, it seems—touches the pocket-book of the party or parties concerned, and produces much speculation and inquiry naturally as to its ultimate effect on society in general. We are not going into details to explain the causes of this situation that has been, and is yet being, more ably dealt upon by the greatest men of our day. Suffice it to say, however, that we have the problem to face, and here is where we believe we are combating the big monster in a very energetic manner and with an already measured degree of success.

The most shining example of this we have right within our midst in connection with the assistance rendered by our Senior Science girls in our dining-hall. True to the traditions of the fair component of Canada's society these young ladies have given us further proof of their initiative and resourcefulness in rising to meet the problem of keeping the college feeding machine working at top-notch efficiency and without increasing the cost of board to the students.

About three weeks ago we found, owing to greatly increased attendance this year, a grave shortage of waitresses. Thereupon our S.S. girls, seeing a chance to put into practice what they are acquiring in theory throughout the study periods put both shoulders to the wheel of the above stated machine and, needless to say, are making a "rep." for themselves that will go a long way toward proving to the world what M.A.C. can do—and, especially what our girls will do in future household management.

WHO IS HE?

During the Junior-Freshman Soccer game yesterday afternoon a shaggy little specimen of the canine family was observed carrying several boots, belonging to the players who had temporarily laid them aside, off the field. He took a circuitous route to somewhere into the maze of shrubbery back of the High School building, and was from there lost to sight. What kind of new graft this small poacher is practising is not exactly known, but, perhaps at some future date those perfectly good boots will be exhibited as relics of a period when such articles were to be had for a mere pittance—so to speak. The next time he tries this stuff around here he will receive a rough handling.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY CLASS IS STRONG

Judging Train For Chicago Possible.

The animal husbandry option of the 4th year is assuming a different atmosphere from what it has had during the last few years. This session it is the strongest option of the year, there being eleven seniors specializing in this work, which is more than for several years past. Permission has also been granted the department to form a live stock judging team for the International Live Stock Show to be held at Chicago, December 1-7.

In 1911 Macdonald sent her first judging team to Chicago and won first place. In 1913 another team was sent but did not win, although a good showing was made. Since 1913 no other teams have been sent, chiefly on account of lack of material. This year a team is in the making. Whether or not it will go to Chicago rests on the ability of the class.

In order to supplement the work in live stock judging at the college, Prof. Barton has arranged week-end trips to live stock centres. On the 25th the class spent the day at D. A. McPhee's farm at Vankleek Hill, Ont. Mr. McPhee had arranged a sale of Oxford sheep, and through his courtesy the class were able to go over quite a large group, becoming familiar with the breed and getting a good idea on the selection of the individual. Mr. McPhee is a former Guelph student, and besides breeding Oxford sheep, has a fine herd of Holstein cattle which were much admired by the class.

COEDS MAY USE STUDENT'S GRILL

R.V.C. Students Are Offered the Advantage of Union Cafeteria.

At a meeting of the Union House Committee last evening, it was decided that henceforth the fair element from R.V.C. will be permitted to enter the sacred portals of the Union, nay more, it is denied that they shall taste of the appetizing dishes served in the Union Cafeteria at luncheon and sip tea at five until further notice. The committee realized that this is a departure from the regular activities at the Union, but they feel assured that it will add greatly to the success and popularity of the Cafeteria, and that it will also satisfy a long felt want at R.V.C.

It might be expedient to add that prices will be as usual, and that sufficient supply of food will be on hand to cope with the increase in demand. R.V.C. students therefore are urged to patronize the Cafeteria whenever possible. There they are assured of prompt and efficient service, good food at reasonable prices and pleasant surroundings.

NOTHING DOING

The much-married man thought he'd try a new system he had worked out. Addressing his spouse, he said:

"My dear I should like to go to Jones' to-night for several hours. Mr. Jones is not ill, and does not require any sitting up with. If he did, I should let his wife do it. Mr. Jones is perfectly well, so far as I know, except for a longing for a game of cards. There might be something to drink—he did not specify concerning that. He only said my presence would be appreciated. I am sure that since I have told you the truth about this affair you will consent to my going. Am I right, He was not.

ANNUAL BOARD.

Owing to unpreventable causes, the meeting of the Annual Board has been postponed, and will be held on Friday, the 1st, at 4.00 p.m., in the Faculty Room of the R.V.C.

There will be a class meeting of Third Year Science, at 10.55 a.m., Friday, October 31st, in Room 33, of the Engineering Building, to elect three representatives to the Board of the Annual. It is requested that nominations be carefully considered before the meeting, that the best possible men may be chosen for this important body.

Owing to the illness of Mr. Stroud, the taking of the class photograph, which was to have been on Friday, has been postponed, and the correct date will be announced later.

NOTICE.

There will be a meeting of all men students at noon to-day, in Room 107, Main Building. Important business to discuss. Everybody make a special effort to attend.

NFLD. CLUB HELD FIRST MEETING

An enthusiastic gathering took place at the Hall yesterday for the purpose of starting the Newfoundland Club. Only about twenty-four men were present, owing to a misunderstanding, and to an unsuitable hour having been chosen; but it is hoped to arrange the next meeting so that it will be possible for everyone to attend. Many of those present were men who went overseas in 1914 with the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, and earned great names for themselves in the evacuation of Gallipoli and in Flanders.

Sharp on time the meeting was called to order, a temporary chairman and secretary elected, and immediately those present entered into an interesting discussion on the policy of the club, its range of membership, and like matters.

It was decided to elect a committee of five to carry out several items of business which are necessary before the next meeting can be held. Messrs. Parnell, Cashin, Curtis, Davis and Johnson were entrusted with these commissions, and were requested to have them executed within at least ten days. After a few more helpful suggestions the meeting adjourned.

The meeting, all through, showed unusual enthusiasm and keenness which augurs well, indeed, for the future of the club.

All Newfoundlanders are requested to watch the "Daily" closely around the end of next week for the notice of the next meeting, which will be of more importance than that of to-day. Come, and see that everyone else comes.

MEDICAL FRAT. WILL SOON MEET

A meeting of the above Fraternity will be held early next week and all members are asked to look out for further notices in the Daily.

The A. O. A. Fraternity is the Honorary Medical Fraternity corresponding to Sigma Psi in Science and Phi Beta Kappa of the Arts School.

To quote from the constitution:—"This is a non secret, fourth (and fifth) year, Medical Honor Society, membership to which is based entirely upon scholarship, moral qualifications being satisfactory. It was organized at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago, August 25, 1902, and is the only society of its kind in medical schools on this continent. It is deemed wise to limit the Chapters to Medical Schools of the highest standing."

The Chapter at McGill was instituted in 1911, and most of the best known medical men at the University are members, as are numerous successful graduates. A flourishing Chapter exists at Toronto, and it is the object of the executive to make the Chapter here this year of equal value to its members.

It is a signal honor for any student to be asked to join such a society.

SECOND TALK DELIVERED BY DR. SYMONDS

draws attention to the value of the Kingdom of Heaven, and, in that of the woman and the heaven, to its effect upon society.

In the mind of Jesus the Kingdom of Heaven was mainly one on earth, although He realized its spiritual consummation. Here again Protestant theology is weak in that does not grasp this fact; it fails to realize that the heaven is working here and that the mustard seed has its beginning in this earth. This thought is found in the Lord's Prayer in the petition "Thy Kingdom Come," for the words "in earth as in heaven" may be regarded as a refrain to all of the three opening phrases. In the same way the spiritual order mentioned in the Apocalypse may be said to be built up of the spiritual elements of this life. It, therefore, depends upon the measure in which we are able to realize a spiritual society here.

Though Christ only taught the Jews and made no attempt during His early life to send his disciples abroad, His Kingdom was all inclusive. This is clearly shown in the command "Love thy neighbors" and in the parable of the Good Samaritan, as well as in His attitude towards the Roman centurion and the woman of Samaria.

In closing Dr. Symonds declared that the Church as it exists now cannot be identified with the Kingdom of God. There exists between them the same difference as between the architect's plans of a great cathedral and that cathedral in the course of construction.

The one is a perfect ideal, the other incomplete and full of mistakes. It remains for us all, as builders of this great temple, to do one little bit of work faithfully and in accordance with the plans of the Great Designer.

The meeting was brought to a close with a few minutes of silent prayer.

PROGRAMME FOR THE LIT. IS ANNOUNCED

bating Society, will be given through the columns of the Daily.

The Lit. is particularly anxious to have every faculty represented. It bases its whole claim to support solely and simply in the advantages which it has to offer to all classes of students, in the training and practice in the art of public speaking. It is unnecessary to emphasize the importance of this training in all walks of life, in medicine, engineering, law or business. It is an essential part of the education of every college student. The Lit. stands to meet this need in our college organization; it is the only society which does, and upon its ability to meet this need, it is prepared to stand or fall. The usefulness of the Lit. and the extent of its activities during the year, are entirely dependent upon the support which it receives at the present time, and especially upon the attendance at the general meeting next week. All those who want to learn to speak on their feet are requested to be present.

Although no definite announcement can as yet be made, arrangements are under way for a big debate in the Union with representatives of the Delta and Sigma Societies. This will take place in the near future, and further announcements will be made within a few days.

Correspondence

The Daily is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office—that they write upon ONE side of the paper ONLY.

No communication will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

Oct. 29, 1919.

To the Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

It is regrettable that such a minor detail as a Freshman-Sophomore Rush cannot be pulled off without the publication of such letters as those signed "Fair Play" and "Med. '23."

"Fair Play" makes a number of statements which he cannot substantiate inasmuch as no representative of the Med. Sophs. ever made any suggestions about starting a Rush to the president of either Med '24 or Med '25.

The party who signs himself Med '23 makes assertions which are not only untrue but also ungentlemanly. Such assertions can do no harm to the reputation of the Freshman year but reflect discredit, rather, on the ungentlemanly source from which they emanate, and, to some extent, unfortunately, upon the class which he professes to represent.

They can, however, do a great deal of harm to the spirit of friendliness which usually pervades the rivalry between the Freshman and Sophomore years.

Such correspondence tends to defeat the object of the Daily which ought to promote, rather than to dampen, college spirit.

D. F. M.

Med. '24.

Ed. Note.—If D. F. M. will read the paragraph at the head of this column he will see that the Daily is not responsible for opinions expressed in this column. The object of the correspondence column is to impartially present the views of all its readers.

THAT MED. RUSH AGAIN

Oct. 29th, '19.

Editor, McGill Daily:

Dear Sir:

In to-day's Daily I noticed a letter, written by a character who signed himself "Med. '23," in which, besides a eulogy on the fact that the Sophomores offered to meet the Freshmen, stipulating no conditions whatever, he goes on to bewail the fact that the Freshmen accepted this offer.

If, as he says, the Sophomores made this offer, what under the sun is Med. '23 howling about?

In so far as the "Outnumbering" and "Fair Play" part is concerned, I am pleased to see that matter dealt with in a letter signed "A Red. Freshie," also appearing in to-day's Daily. The part of Med. '23's letter to which I really wish to refer, however, is that in which he refers to the Freshmen as "Pikers," "Squealers" and "Crawlers."

Now, I should like to point out to Med. '23 that the real test period for "Pikers," "Squealers" and "Crawlers" began on Aug. 4th, 1914, and ended Nov. 11th, 1918, and if Med. '23 will take the trouble of counting the number of returned men in the Freshman class, for his own enlightenment, at least, he will find that this class has largely stood the crucial test and it is not for such as he, who, if a "returned man" is not worthy of the name and, if not a returned man, should ever hold his peace on the subject of manhood or valor, to declaim this name.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I remain,

"A TESTED VERDANT."

The Editor of the Daily:

Dear Sir:

I see, from to-day's "Campus Notes" that you want some correspondence on the fancy dress ball. Well, here it is.

To-day is Thursday and hence tomorrow is Friday and Halloween. Now Halloween used to be observed by the McGill students in the approved manner and as McGill seems to be getting a little more pep into her why not celebrate Halloween in some way. It is too late now to have the masquerade ball, but still something might be done to celebrate. Why not try and do something besides study on a night such as Friday and so why not be "up and doing?"

With reference to the mask ball, let me say one word in opposition: it is that the out-of-town students may find it difficult to procure costumes and will not care to go to the expense of buying; this seems to be the only objection to an excellent idea, but like many other ideas it seems to be passing away. If the thing is to be a success, as it should be, the Student Body must be distinctly enthusiastic and take an interest in it. If it is possible to have a mask ball then let there be one to vary the monotony of the social events.

Trusting that the mask ball will soon come off and that it will be a tremendous success, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

MASQUERADER.

The Editor of the Daily:

Dear Sir:

I would like to add a few words to what has been said by L. S. F. and G. H. F. on the welcome which should be paid to the Prince of Wales on Friday.

If this proposed plan is to be carried out successfully the students must be organized; and from what I have heard to-day there does not seem to be much chance of the Routers' Club doing it, as they have not yet been approached on the subject. It is, therefore, up to somebody else and who are so fitted as the class presidents? Could not the Presidents, in conjunction with the Routers' Club, call a meeting and discuss this proposal, which to my mind is first-rate, and either turn it down definitely or carry it out properly to a successful conclusion. We do not want an unorganized mob to rush the royal car. What is needed is a definite plan of action where everyone knows his place.

At the Prince's arrival he was greeted by the Laval students who marched down to the station to meet him. Now, one thing sure, is that we don't want the Prince to think that Laval is the University of Montreal, but we want him to know that McGill is and always will be. The plan which has been proposed by L. S. F. and G. H. F. is as good as any and the only one put forward, so get busy you, influential fellows, and do something.

A second point which I would mention, is that, to my mind, some notice ought to be given to the Prince's guardians before we carry out this plan. Otherwise, we might be mistaken for anarchists and assassins, which would be humiliating.

Trusting that action will be taken at once, and that the proposed scheme may prove a huge success, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

F. D. W.

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

Now that the various sectional clubs are being formed, I would suggest that the students who come from Appalachianrugotunupos should come together. Since the cliques are holding away about the college, why not foster their spirit to the utmost.

Yours sincerely,

UNITY.

ROBINSON'S CLOTHES, LIMITED TAKE OVER LARGE WAREHOUSE

Remarkable Growth of National Clothes Concern
Necessitates Acquisition of New Quarters.

The opening of a warehouse is not in itself an epoch-making affair; but the big warehouse on Craig St., Montreal, recently taken over by Robinson's Clothes, Limited, and now in the process of alteration, marks another important mile-stone in the business life of that institution.

Six years ago, Mr. M. C. Robinson rented a modest little upstairs room, and with a capital of but $400, inaugurated the upstairs system of selling, an idea of merchandising that has since established itself on a solid basis. By eliminating all costly methods of doing business, he effected a saving which he advertised to the public in his now famous slogan, "Take the Elevator and Save Ten."

The results were almost instantaneous. The idea took hold and swiftly and surely the business grew to enormous proportions until to-day he operates a chain of upstairs shops from coast to coast. It is said that the business is to-day the largest of its kind in Canada.

Mr. Robinson is reported to have recently contracted with a number of the leading mills of England, Ireland and United States to handle their entire export output, which necessitates the operation of the large warehouse in which will also be stored the huge stock of clothing from where the Robinson shops in the different cities will be supplied.

The chain of shops operated by Robinson's Clothes, Limited, now include Vancouver, Edmonton, Regina, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, Quebec, Halifax, two shops in Montreal, and their new warehouse which is nearing completion.

That is the remarkable record of what a worth while idea, combined with perseverance and implicit confidence in Canada, has accomplished in six short years.

PREHISTORIC LIFE.

Those who have taken the trouble to visit the Redpath Museum will have noticed the casts of four skeletons, or parts of skeletons, and possibly have wondered if such animals ever lived on earth. The only historian of the majority of these queer reptiles and mammals is mother Nature, who in her own slow process has preserved every stage of development except that in which man changed from the ape. As the geology students will tell you the records are written in the rock layers that have taken thousands, perhaps millions of years to form.

Many and strange are the freaks that have been produced since the first living cell navigated the tepid waters of the prehistoric shoreless ocean. At first, all developments took place in the water but as the land appeared and vegetation sprang up the reptiles crawled out on the land and their needs were supplied as required. Did they need legs—well and good—legs Nature gave them! She gave them wings, feathers—everything they needed—until possibly they asked too much and she shut off their food supply!

The reptile family comprises some of the strangest of creations. The pterodactyl or wing-fingered reptile was, in a very free description a flying umbrella. It had a vicious looking beak, studded with diamond-shaped teeth with two wicked red eyes on each side. The wings comprised a stretch of fifteen feet of leather membrane, without a hair or feather on its body or wings. It is a question whether this reptile or one of the smaller and lighter three-fingered reptiles gave birth to the bird family.

Another swimming monster of the same family was a long necked reptile, with a name as long as its neck, which could swim twenty feet under water and still have its head out.

The mammals that are best known are the ones whose bones are reproduced in the Redpath Museum. The mammoth was a hairy grandfather of the elephant and could hold its own with the fiercest of antagonists. The dinosaur was a forerunner of the rhinoceros and had two sets of tusks to work with.

The upright figure is called a megasaurus and was a great tree eater. Rather than stoop to chew the grass at its feet it would pull down a tree for itself and eat the top off it. No doubt some of the sloths of South America are the descendants of this huge boned beast.

The other domeshaped animal is one whose living descendant is the humble little fifteen inch armadillo of South America. Take a look at the cast in the Museum and compare the two.

Some of the smaller reptiles took a notion to climb trees, and being inexperienced, like small boys they fell down sometimes. Then they took to jumping from one tree to another and as they became more adapted to this mode of living wings began to grow. We laugh when people mention hen's teeth but in those days the birds had teeth, and their tail feathers were set on each side of their tail like the bones of a herring. Doubtless the tail was made more fan-shaped as they used it more.

It is lucky for man that he didn't live at the same time as that terror of the forest, the collared dinosaur. Imagine an animal weighing nearly three tons armoured from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail with great knobs of horn; and with an added protection of a collar of spines covered with membrane that looked like the flat collars which girls wear to-day. Imagine running out to fight one of those mountains of flesh with a puny bow and arrow or a stone hatchet.

Hundreds of relics of those times are being unearthed in California, the Red River, Canada, and many places in Europe and new and startling are some of the discoveries that are made. Some day, perhaps they will come upon that baffling missing link and their chain of pre-history will be complete but until then it will always be a mystery as to when man arrived and what animals he had to contend with.

A MEXICAN JUTE MILL IN ACTION

One might believe that the Santa Gertrudis jute mill, located here, was situated in Dundee, Scotland, judging by the Scotch accent of the managers and the Dundee machinery. The jute mill has a force of 400 men and 200 women, but has sufficient machinery to employ 1200 persons. The present poor demand is due to the importation of second-hand American sacks free of duty; but the government is arranging to impose a duty on second-hand sacks, and it is hoped that this will stimulate the demand for the factory's output.

The workers are paid 1.65 pesos per day of eight hours for men, and 1.30 pesos for women, while the piece-workers earn as much as 15 pesos per week of 48 hours. The workers are housed in dwellings provided by the company at a nominal rental, and the company contributes toward the expense of educating the children.

There are about 360 looms and about 6000 spindles in the plant, the power for driving them being obtained from the water power of the Rio Blanco. In fact, the reason for locating this mill, and the cotton mills upstream from it, was entirely on account of the

A Graduate's Confessions

However, let me tell you the story of Schwartz, Rabinovitch and Weinstein. It is a tale which does not bring myself or my fellow-conspirator much credit, but then what are confessions for?

Yes, it was a mean, low-down sort of attempt, and yet—oh, but there were some funny moments in it.

It started this way. The President of the Daily—no, not the present one, but another—and I were seated in the office, longing for news and getting it not. The whole college seemed sunk in quiescence, and absolutely nothing worth printing was going on.

"—, old chap," I began (that dash stands for his name, not a swear-word, although I may have cursed a bit, and probably did). "this is awful. We must stir up the place."

"What can we do?—Burn down the Union!" he suggested, hopefully.

"Phone up the Arts building, and enquire if the report is true that Asiatic cholera has broken out in the R.V.C. That'll start them talking, and we may get a story out of it," was my contribution; but it was disclaimed.

"Ah, the R.V.C.," exclaimed my companion, and I saw his eye light up. "Let's phone up somebody at the R.V.C."

"Yes, let's," I answered. "Suppose you do the phoning."

The craven needed ten minutes, argument to convince him that it was necessary for him to do the talking, but finally consented.

"What'll we say, now?" was the next question. A moment sufficed to provide the answer. We both shouted at once.

So it was agreed that we should phone by proxy to the Royal Victoria College—we didn't think it necessary to inform him of our plans—and make an appointment with a Miss Blank, on business about the Annual. Then I would phone his home when he was absent and make a similar appointment with him. Thus did we plot to cause poor O— (I remembered the case of the Med's, sister, which we'll deal with later, and cherished a grudge against him) a painful situation, that would require much explanation, for, of course, at the appointed hour we intended to be on hand.

I didn't consider, at the time, the fact that we could also be causing the unfortunate young lady much embarrassment, and dragging her into an affair of which she had no knowledge. But, then, I hadn't reached years of discretion.

Well, my friend took down the receiver. "Uptown 1979," he said in honeyed tones, and I knew at once which operator had answered. "Hello, is that the Royal Victoria College? Could I speak to Miss Blank?"

Then a terrible look came into his face and placing his hand over the transmitter he turned to me, and gasped, "Which Miss Blank? Quick! There must be two of them."

"Miss B. Blank," I answered. Luckily I remembered the name.

"She isn't in," he said, sadly, a moment later, hanging down the receiver. "Call up again and leave your message," I urged.

He did so. Thus far our plot went well; the attendant took our message without any apparent suspicion.

Then came my turn. This was even easier. O— was out and his relatives agreed to tell him of the appointment when he entered.

We parted for the day, chuckling over our success. But the morning brought reflection and revealed to us the weak point in the scheme. Was it not exceedingly likely that one of the parties interested should, with the object of gaining further information concerning the mysterious appointment, phone the other and so ruin all our work? We finally decided not to stay for the meeting, but to wait until Monday. (The plan was hatched on a Friday) and see what would develop.

splendid water power available. The present water power is 1725 horsepower, but the canal and pipe line is large enough for 5000 horsepower. The power plant is located at the bottom of a deep barranco, and the sound of the rushing water duplicates the hum of the mill above. The foliage is luxuriant, and tiny waterfalls of spray float downward to add their mite to the rushing stream below. Far above is the blue sky flecked with white wisps of cloud, while the buzzards, with their great wing-spread, wheel and circle overhead.

On the edge of the cliff are two block houses manned by federal troops for the defense of the plant, the pipe line of which was dynamited by the rebels on the refusal of the company to pay tribute. The mountain section of the railway, from Mexico City to Veracruz is defended in the same manner.

The gardens here are lovely. The neatly trimmed hedges are ablaze with the bright crimson of the tulipan, of which they are made, and the rich carmine of the bougainville is seen about the houses and even decorates the tree tops. The white-capped peak of Orizaba is set on the pale brick-red cone of the mountain, rising majestically above the dark green range of the Sierra Negra, and the sugar loaf of Tepic, bright green with foliage, comprises the immediate foreground.

Farther down the Rio Blanco is the power plant of the Puebla Light & Power Company. The tramway cars drawn by mules run so infrequently that the company provides a gasoline driven car, which runs on the rails, for the use of its staff, and the trip to Tuxpango is very enjoyable. The route passes through the village of Escameca, where the roadside is lined with Indian huts, almost hidden under the dense growth of the chachilote vine, producing a starchy vegetable of which the natives are very fond. Their huts are heavily thatched on the roof, but the sides are merely vertical bamboo poles set about half an inch apart, which provide no protection against the slanting rains accompanying a "norther."

At the top of the Tuxpango bluff is a hoisting engine of 150 horsepower driven by electricity, which was used in the construction of the power plant to lower the machinery, in parts

the money we lend or pay for them:
BECAUSE we are not so likely to part with them;

BECAUSE they yield double bank interest;

BECAUSE, registered, they are safer than money in bank vaults;

BECAUSE in an emergency they command cash instantly at one-sixth the cost of drawing cash from bank deposit;

BECAUSE these bonds are the very best form of Thrift Savings.
